A Bagbear Disrobed.

The Appleton Crescent has got up a sensation story about an attempt to murder Charles Larrabee, and charges the attempt upon republicans. This story is, of course, copied into the Democrat of this city.

The Green Bay Advocate, however, very effectively "takes down" the story by the following common sense narrative:

ALMOST AN ACCIDENT.—It was arranged that Judge Larrabee and party, after the meeting at Wrightstown on Wednesday last week, should go by carriage to Deperre, where an evening meeting was to be held; and Mr. Call was there for that purpose.

The late arrival of the boat at Wrightstown, however, made it necessary for the party to remain with her to Deperre, and Mr. Call came down alone. The night was dark and stormy, and fortunately he drowsed and carelessly for he found that at one of the high bridges above a part of the plank had been dislodged just enough to have sent the team to the bottom if he had driven upon them.

We have heard it suggested that this might have been done intentionally by some person or persons, to interrupt the passage of the party; but there is probably no ground for such a suspicion. We do not believe there is a man in Brown county, of whatever party, mean or devilish enough to do a thing like that. The heavy rain of Wednesday undoubtedly did the mischief.

We hardly know whether gratification at the providential escape of the party, or de-stitution of the effort to make party capital from it, is the strongest emotion.

From the St. Louis Democrat.

Went Douglas Come to St. Louis!

The following are a few of the results of Douglas' stump speeches, before and since the search for his mother:

DOUGLAS VISITS MAINE—Result, Twenty thousand republican majority!

DOUGLAS VISITS VERMONT—Result, Twenty-two thousand republican majority!

DOUGLAS VISITS PENNSYLVANIA—Result, Thirty-five thousand republican majority!

DOUGLAS VISITS INDIANA—Result, The republicans carry the state by fifteen thousand majority—the first time Indiana ever went anti-democratic!

DOUGLAS VISITS OHIO—Result, Republican majority increased from 13,000 to 20,000! Cleveland, where Douglas made a long speech, gave the republicans a gain of 1300!

DOUGLAS VISITS VIRGINIA—Result, Slave insurrection in Prince Anne and Norfolk counties—result of Norfolk speech!

DOUGLAS VISITS NORTH CAROLINA—Result, A Kentucky paper says there are more advertisements of runaway slaves in North Carolina papers than ever!

DOUGLAS VISITS IOWA—Result, Twenty members of a Douglas club, at Cedar Rapids, secede and declare for Lincoln!

DOUGLAS VISITS ILLINOIS—Result, 20,000 majority for Lincoln in November!

We hope the Douglas men will not fail to give their chief a handsome reception in this city. He is entitled to it.

Douglas came to Wisconsin, and the effect of his visit will be the same as it has been in other states. We hear of democrats all through the country, who have listened to Douglas since he came into the state, and saw the man, and who declare that they will vote for Lincoln. His visit will give the republicans thousands of votes in this state.

OHIO.—The average republican majority in Ohio is 25,000. The delegation in Congress stands 13 republicans and 8 democrats—a republican loss of two. The legislature is, of course, large republican.

The census of Green Bay, just completed, shows a population of 3,120.

Mr. Douglas' Speech at Milwaukee.

We find the speech of Mr. Douglas at Milwaukee reported at length in the News.

It treats, principally, upon a new topic, and one which will not fail to interest the public.

It seems that a "Democratic Association" in Kansas, which Mr. Douglas declares to be a "Breckinridge Committee," have published a correspondence with citizens of Kansas, in which Mr. Douglas is charged with being the author of the plan of the submission of the Lecompton constitution. It will be recollected that at the time it was distinctly charged by republicans that this plan was a cheat upon the people, and that it was indignantly denied by the whole democratic press. This was before it was known publicly that Mr. Douglas had quarreled with the president, and that he would oppose the Lecompton constitution. This scheme consisted of ascribed articles attached to the original Lecompton slave constitution, by which, in the language of Mr. Douglas, "if the people voted for it, Kansas was a slave state, and if they voted against it, still it was a slave state."

There never was a more villainous plan to entrap a free people ever presented, except, perhaps, the bribe contained in the English bill, which Mr. Douglas has the reputation of secretly favoring, although he voted against it.

Well, it was charged by this Breckinridge committee that this plan of submission, together with the Lecompton constitution, were approved by Mr. Douglas, in a letter to the late John Calhoun, Surveyor general of Kansas. The testimony to prove this charge is principally that of members of the Lecompton convention, and none of the witnesses are republicans. We desire our readers to take note of the fact, that this is a democratic quarrel entirely—the charge being made by democrats, and the testimony is all democratic. The members of the Lecompton constitution, so far as heard from, all agree in the statement, except one, that John Calhoun had positively stated to them that Mr. Douglas had written a letter advising and recommending the very plan of submission which he afterwards denounced. The exception is that of James Doniphan; who is a warm friend of Douglas, and who declares that he has no recollection of any such statement being made by Calhoun.

This is the charge, and this is the evidence which Mr. Douglas repels in his speech at Milwaukee. He does it in very pointed and emphatic terms, and accompanies it with a statement of the circumstances connected with his rebellion against the President, which is quite spicy and interesting.

In relation to the charge that the Lecompton constitution, and the schedule, were submitted to him, and that he approved of them, he says:

I desire to say to you emphatically that it is false in every particular. I never saw the Lecompton constitution until after it had been adopted in Kansas by the convention, and sent to the President of the United States for acceptance. I never saw the schedule by which the slavery clause was submitted until after it was forwarded to the states for publication. I never heard, nor conceived, nor dreamed that any man on earth ever thought of such a scheme. I make these statements distinctly, without equivocation or mental reservation. I appeal to God, in the presence of high Heaven and this audience, that the charge is false. I care not who make it.

That is pretty strong, and yet a large number of democrats in Kansas unite in certifying that John Calhoun, the confidential friend of Douglas, had stated to them that the very opposite of this solemn declaration was true. Who shall we believe?

After making this denial, Mr. Douglas goes on to give an account of the appointment of Robert J. Walker, as governor of Kansas—the pledge given by Mr. Buchanan and his cabinet that the constitution should be submitted to the people—and of the inaugural address prepared by Walker, in which the pledge was distinctly made that the constitution should be submitted to a vote of the people of Kansas. Walker called upon Douglas at Chicago, showed him this address in manuscript, told him Mr. Buchanan had approved of it, and as conclusive evidence of this fact, Douglas says "he allowed me to examine the inter-relationships in the document in Mr. Buchanan's own hand."

The treachery of Mr. Buchanan and his repudiation of his pledge is a matter of history. This statement of Mr. Douglas adds confirmation to it; but it must be remembered that this bad faith was that of one democrat towards another; and considering the fact that four years ago the democratic party was united in declaring Mr. Buchanan pure and honest, and in repelling every doubt on this point suggested by the republicans, is it not possible that that party is now just as badly fooled by its leaders Douglas and Breckinridge?

Mr. Douglas' course, during the struggle over the Lecompton constitution, and the adoption of the English swindle, is surrounded by suspicion and clouded with charges of cowardice and treachery. We have only to refer to the extract from the speech of John Hickman, an anti-Lecompton democrat who was behind the scenes at that time, to make it evident that, with all his pretensions, Douglas was the secret enemy of the people of Kansas, and desired to saddle upon them the curse of slavery.

Those old charges, that Mr. Douglas was ready to abandon his party and unite with the republicans, if they would make him Senator from Illinois, and that he held caucuses with republicans at the time of the Lecompton struggle, on these propositions, still remain undisposed of, and are generally believed, at least by the republicans. We are getting, by piece-meal, the history of the fight over the infamous attempt, by the leaders of the democratic party to make a slave state of Kansas; and we are much aided by the quarrel between Douglas and Buchanan. They are telling what they know of each other. To the fortunate circumstance that Douglas found it necessary to insist upon the submission of the Kansas constitution to the people, to secure his reelection to the senate, we are indebted for all these developments, and the division of the democratic party. It also proves conclusively, (and the testimony is all democratic,) that the republicans are right in their charges against that party in 1856, in relation to the attempt to force slavery into Kansas, in defiance of the will of the people.

Mr. Douglas goes on in his speech with the history of his quarrel with the president. He thus relates his interview with him when they came to an open rupture:

He said he must recommend it [the Lecompton Constitution] in his message, and I replied that if he did, I would denounce it the moment his message was read. At last the President became somewhat excited upon the subject. And he asked me, "Mr. Douglas, I desire you to remember that no democrat ever yet differed from an administration of his own choice without being crushed." Then he added: "Beware of the fate of Tallmadge and Rives." I arose and said: "Mr. President, I wish you to remember that General Jackson is dead, sir." From that day to this he and I have been trying the question whether or not General Jackson is dead.

This is Mr. Douglas' version of the matter. It may be true, but we have no doubt Mr. Buchanan will have his story to tell, and we shall wait for that before we make up our minds which had the best of it.

But to recur to the letter, which the Kansas democratic Breckinridge committee charge Mr. Douglas with writing. It seems that the administration, according to Mr. Douglas' statement, were convinced that he had written such a letter, that an office held under the federal government, "nearly connected," says Douglas, "with the treasury I have on earth," [is that enemy Buchanan?] went to Mrs. Calhoun, her husband being dead, and offered her $2000 for any letters which Douglas may have written to Calhoun; that she refused, but offered to let Douglas have them; that he consented to receive them; and that finally she wrote to him that she could not find any letter with a date later than 1853. Is it possible that Mr. Douglas did not write to Mr. Calhoun, his confidential friend, after 1853? If he did, where are the letters?

We have not room at this time to pursue this subject further. The statements, however, are made by Mr. Douglas from recollection, and as we know that he falsifies the history of the country, he may possibly make some mistake in this private history of his. However this may be, the exhibition made in this speech, of democratic treachery and corruption, is sufficient to satisfy us that the best thing the people can do is to turn out of office the whole democratic brood, and thus give them ample time to settle their quarrels and tell all they know of each other's rascalities.

Letter from the Third Congressional District.

WAUPUN, OCT. 16, 1860.

EDITORS GAZETTE.—There has been no little excitement during the last week in the political horizon of Dodge and Fond du Lac counties, by both political parties.—Last Wednesday the republicans had a good time at Horicon, notwithstanding the rain that continued to pour down without intermission during the entire afternoon. There were 500 Wide Awakes present upon the occasion, besides an immense gathering of the republican army. The Wide Awakes of Waupun were unfortunately not present upon this interesting occasion. About seventy, however, got ready to go down upon a special train and participate in the demonstration in the evening, but were prevented by a despatch, which informed them that owing to the inclemency of the weather, the torch light procession would not take place, as understood in the programme for the occasion.

On Wednesday evening last, an important meeting was called, to have a justification over the glorious triumph of our cause in Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana. The Wide Awakes and people turned out en masse. As soon as the glorious news was received, we proceeded to prepare for the demonstration. One hundred guns were fired, speeches delivered, and loud cheers made the welkins ring with shouts of gladness; all closing with a torch light procession. The demonstration concluded with three rousing cheers for LINCOLN, HAMLIN and SLOAN.

It affords no inconsiderable satisfaction to be able to assure you that the prospects of Judge Sloan are daily brightening, and I do not hesitate to say that his election is now placed beyond a doubt. He is everywhere received with enthusiastic confidence by the party to which he is allied, and he is also drawing to his support a large portion of that floating vote which has heretofore been so largely under the control of the democratic leaders. The sky is bright, the camp fires are burning, and the people of this congressional district are aroused to the importance of the present political conflict.

Last Friday evening the "Little Giant" spoke at Fond du Lac, and the "unfettered" were out in all their glory. Special trains were run upon all the roads leading to the place; every person who desired to go could do so for a very small charge, and a large gathering was the result. While we were awaiting the arrival of the train at the Chester depot, your correspondent and a Douglas man took a vote, which resulted as follows—24 for Lincoln, 11 for Douglas; none but voters were counted.

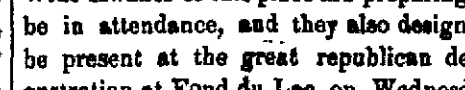

About 7 o'clock we arrived at Fond du Lac and found, of course, something of a concourse of people to receive the "distinguished candidate" for the presidency. I am free to admit that the display of the transparencies of "red, white and blue," were brilliant and attractive; but the "lights" borne by boys, drunken and disorderly persons, presented a wide contrast to the orderly character of our own patriotic Wide Awakes upon such occasions.

There was probably from 3,000 to 5,000 persons present, and it is perfectly safe to estimate one-half of the number as firm and staunch republicans.

Mr. Douglas spoke in the court house square, for about an hour, in his usual style of self-dramatizing eloquence, with assertions unsupported by facts, and by a falsification of the history by which he claims to support them.

There will be a mass meeting of republicans at Fox Lake to-day (Monday). The Wide Awakes of this place are preparing to be in attendance, and they also design to be present at the great republican demonstration at Fond du Lac on Wednesday next, of which you shall be duly informed.

So you see that the republicans are awake and doing, in the third congressional district, and you may rest assured, will give a good account of themselves on the 6th of November. B.

A Good Illustration.

At a recent republican mass meeting in Springfield, Ohio, one of the speakers—The Hon. Mr. Rice—illustrated the operation of the Missouri Compromise repeal in the following felicitous manner:

"Suppose two individuals by their joint funds should buy a large tract of wild land, and they should own it in common. Now one of them wants to raise crops and cultivate his share; he wants to clear the land and to plow and till it. We will call him Jonathan. The other—we'll call him William Augustus, for the southern men like aristocratic names.—[laughter]—wants to use his share in another way. He wants to keep cattle—black cattle—in it. [Laughter.] Well they try to use it in common. Jonathan's piece looks good—everything grows fine, and he thinks he has a right smart chance of a crop. But William Augustus' cattle will go through his field, and he is in danger of losing it. Jonathan goes to William Augustus and tells him he can't stand this. 'Well,' says William Augustus, 'I don't see any way for you to do but to go into the cattle business yourself.' Jonathan don't want to do that; he is too old to invest money in black cattle. Finally they get together and agree to divide the land. William Augustus says, picking out the best part of it, the richest land, 'Give me the south part and I will be content. You will always have the right to enjoy the north as much as you please. I won't run my cattle there at all.' 'It is a pretty hard bargain,' says Jonathan, 'but let that be the line. Come out here, bring out your sons and servants, and we'll mark the line, and erect a fence that shall be a division between our places.' Jonathan plants his corn and raises his crops. William Augustus pursues his cattle and he thinks he has not quite range enough for them. He begins first by wishing he hadn't let Jonathan have so much; then he wishes he could get it back again. He is ashamed to talk of such a thing to Jonathan. Jonathan has a servant named Stephen—a man that he has great confidence in. William Augustus knows Stephen, and he asks him, 'Well, Stephen, how does this old Yankee pay you?' 'Oh, so,' says Stephen. 'We get along—that's all.' 'Well, look here,' says William Augustus, 'you just take it down; if the old man makes a fuss about it, I will take you into my piece. You shall marry one of my daughters. I will give you a plantation.' 'Well,' says Stephen, 'I guess that'll pay. Who cares for Jonathan. I'll have that gal.' Stephen goes and tears down the fence. Jonathan comes home and sees his neighbor's cattle in his field. 'How is this,' he says to his neighbor. 'Who tore down the fence?' 'I don't know anything about it,' says William Augustus. 'Yes,' says Jonathan, 'but you have been here all the time, you ought to know all about it.' 'Well,' says William Augustus, 'I'll tell you; don't go on. The fact is, I wanted a larger range. I told Stephen all about it, and he offered to take down the fence. I never would have done it, but when Stephen offered to do it, I couldn't refuse, you see.' 'Oh, but,' says Jonathan, 'the receiver is no better than the thief. You have done wrong, you have corrupted my servants.' Mr. Root proposed to put that fence up again in good style, so that no unfaithful Stephen could tear it down. His speech was very warmly applauded.

"Eighty millions of liars in the bank!" said Mr. Partington as he read the amount of lire that Garibaldi had found at Naples; "they are worse than they are in the banks this way then, and a good many more of 'em."

On Dr.—That a prominent Douglas democrat, on Chestnut street, having bet $7,000 that Douglas will carry seven states, is rightfully disturbed by the news from Indiana and Pennsylvania. We can give him no consolation.—St. Louis Democrat.

When two caravans meet in the interior of Africa, the two head men approach each other, then go back a reasonable distance, lower their heads and butt. The one that butts the other has to yield the right of way to the caravan of the one who "downs" him. So Lieut. Burton says.

Agreeably with the re-organization plan of the creditors of the Milwaukee and Mississippi railroad, a decree of foreclosure under first mortgage has been rendered in the district court of Wisconsin. This was assented to by the city of Milwaukee, so that the only remaining obstacle to a harmonious re-organization of the concern is removed.

LATE FOREIGN NEWS.—The Arabia has arrived bringing Liverpool dates to the 7th.

It is stated that Garibaldi had sent a despatch to Naples announcing a victory along the whole line, and that the royal troops had been repulsed at Caserta and were surrounded. It is reported that Garibaldi had invited Victor Emanuel to Naples, and he would retire to his home. It is said that Napoleon will maintain the non-intervention principle in regard to the Pope, maintaining order at Rome, and designing to consign that city to the protection of a genuine Italian power. Victor Emanuel has assumed the command of Ancona. The Empress of Russia was safely delivered of a prince on the 3d. The Spanish government demands a congress of the catholic powers to protect the pope.

HEAD DRESS LOST.—A red and black chenille head dress, trimmed with light beads, was lost last evening, between the west end of Milwaukee street bridge and the post-office, or Tallman & Collins' drug store.—The finder is requested to leave it at this office.

The second Anniversary of the Walworth Baptist Sabbath School association will be held to-morrow, Oct. 17th at Clinton, commencing at 10½ o'clock A. M. Introductory sermon by Rev. E. L. Harris or J. H. Dudley alternate.

The officers and Teachers of the various Sunday Schools are the delegates to the association.

PENNSYLVANIA.—The prospect a Pennsylvania is that the republicans will have 35,000 majority. According to latest returns we have twenty-two members of Congress. All four of the Philadelphia districts have elected republican congressmen. The official vote of the city of Philadelphia is as follows: Curtin 39,833, Foster 42,119, whole vote 81,952; majority for Foster 2,286.

The legislature is overwhelmingly republican. The senate will stand republicans 26, democrats 7. The lower house will stand republicans 70, democrats 30. Republican majority on joint ballot, 59.

THE WESTERN RESERVE.—Twelve counties in northern Ohio, called the Western Reserve, give a republican majority of over 21,000. This is a noble majority.

For the Gazette and Free Press.

Messrs. Editors:—Having copied into your paper what seems to be a correspondence between the New York Independent and myself, you will oblige me by giving place in your columns to the following rejoinder.

The Independent is a professionally religious paper, but for the past few years it has had strong political proclivities, judging from the language and spirit of its editorials, the contributions of Dr. Cheever, and the letters of its Washington correspondent, all of which, instead of being imbued with the love of the Gospel, have been of a decidedly acrimonious character.

When a political article from the pen of Horace Greeley appeared in its columns, with the announcement that a similar one would appear weekly; also when the names of Lincoln and Hamlin appeared at the head of the paper as its candidates, though only for once, (a thing never seen in any other religious paper), there remained no room to doubt of its character.

In order to draw it out, that it might stand confessed before the world as an intense party political paper, as much so as the Herald or Day Book, the inquiry was made whether it would admit articles in favor of Douglas, to which, under date of Aug. 17, Rev. Joshua Leavitt, D. D., assistant editor, made reply in manuscript as follows:

"Articles advocating the election of Stephen A. Douglas to the Presidency, cannot be admitted to the columns of the Independent."

This was just such an answer as was expected. An affirmative answer was not desired, and if the columns had been thrown open wide, the undersigned would not have availed himself of the privilege, or counselled any other to do so. On the contrary, he believes it entirely inconsistent and degrading for a religious paper thus to enter the arena of party politics, equally for a minister of the Gospel to preach politics from the pulpit on the Sabbath, which opinion, he is happy to know, is supported by a large majority of the religious world; and further, that the subscribers to the Independent at this office, with scarce an exception, manifest a decided aversion to this mixing up; declaring that if they subscribe for a religious paper, they want a religious paper; and that if they want a political paper, they will subscribe for that.

Having thus answered, it seems that some of "the powers that be" of that paper deemed it insufficient, for we find in its issue of Oct. 4, seven weeks from the first, that another answer, more authoritative, with a little more snuff in it, must be given, and that publicly.

"No, Mr. Spooner, we cannot oblige you," &c., making an equivocal statement of the belief that Douglas is not now a candidate.

We are prepared to see similar statements in political papers, and the fact that the Independent claims to be a religious paper, will not conduce to inspire any more confidence in its political statements than in those of others. A woman who mingles in a street fight, is not entitled to any immunity from blows because she is a woman; neither can a politico-religious paper claim or expect any greater consideration.

D. R. SPOONER.

Johnstown, Wis., Oct. 13, 1860.

We think Mr. Spooner is rather late in making public his suspicions that the New York Independent is republican in its tendencies. It has been so since the outrages in Kansas first aroused the conscience of the nation, and taught the people that there is a moral phase to politics, when the rights of human nature are sought to be trampled in the dust by a political party.—EBS. GAZ.

A GREAT MANY DISHONEST MEN.—Senator Douglas said in his speech at Milwaukee—

"I do not believe there is an honest man on earth doubts my fidelity to principle."

Tested by this rule, there is a large host of dishonest men in the country. So far as we know, or can judge, no man's "fidelity to principle" is questioned or disbelieved by a larger number of people than Senator Douglas's, unless he means the "great principle" of "fidelity" to his own advancement.

Phoenix Insurance Co. of Hartford.

We take pleasure in directing the attention of property-holders to the statement of the Phoenix Insurance Company, published in another column. This we consider one of the most reliable Insurance Companies in the country; and we think no one need have the least hesitancy in effecting an insurance in it. Their exhibit shows conclusively of its reliability. No one owning property should go without an insurance, and to such we recommend them to call on the agent and at once effect an insurance.—Home Journal.

Continental Insurance Company.

This prosperous corporation, in order to meet its present and growing wants, has just completed the purchase of the desirable property known as No. 102 Broadway and No. 1 Pine street. Possession will be given on or before the 1st of May next, when we learn a new and beautiful structure will at once be erected, suited to the requirements of the Company. No institution of a similar character in the nation, all things considered, can boast of such an unparalleled property as can this. Commencing with a cash capital of half a million of dollars, it has steadily and rapidly grown, until its available assets now amount to about one million. The officers and directors are known all over the country as among the leading influential business men and capitalists of this city. No better, safer, or stronger Insurance Company exists than the Continental. May it live and grow a thousand years, and continue to pay fat dividends.—New York Independent.

To the Public.

"Now is the accepted time"—to-morrow may be too late—delays are dangerous.—Have you got a store of goods? Have you a dwelling house? Have you any insurable property? Go at once to Dimock's Agency and have it insured at once. Do not let the melancholy words "he had no insurance" prove applicable to your case in event of a sweeping fire.

Nothing like it to restore a doubtful credit. It is greatly to the credit of any owner or occupant of a building to have placed conspicuously over his door, any of the following leading companies' house plates. The Home of New York. The Phoenix of Hartford. The Continental of London, England. Is your credit at the Banks getting below par, up with one of these plates and you are all right at the Rock County, the Central or at Hoyt's.—Every passer-by will say "there is a sound business man." Tell your New York creditors that you insure your lark freight in the reliable Old Home, and your goods after their arrival in any of these incomparable companies and your orders will at all times be filled, and at the lowest figures. A few more of these ornamental plates left at Dimock's Agency.

I desire to call the attention of the citizens of Janesville, and Rock county, more in detail to these well known, reliable and prompt paying

Mr. C. R. Gibbs declined a call to speak, on account of the lateness of the hour. He, however, promised to meet his old neighbors hereafter, and address them.

ALL KINDS OF PRINTING NEATLY EXECUTED AT THIS OFFICE

Phoenix Insurance Co. of Hartford.

We take pleasure in directing the attention of property-holders to the statement of the Phoenix Insurance Company, published in another column. This we consider one of the most reliable Insurance Companies in the country; and we think no one need have the least hesitancy in effecting an insurance in it. Their exhibit shows conclusively of its reliability. No one owning property should go without an insurance, and to such we recommend them to call on the agent and at once effect an insurance.—Home Journal.

Continental Insurance Company.

This prosperous corporation, in order to meet its present and growing wants, has just completed the purchase of the desirable property known as No. 102 Broadway and No. 1 Pine street. Possession will be given on or before the 1st of May next, when we learn a new and beautiful structure will at once be erected, suited to the requirements of the Company. No institution of a similar character in the nation, all things considered, can boast of such an unpromised prosperity as can this. Commencing with a capital of half a million of dollars, it has steadily and rapidly grown, until its available assets now amount to about one million. The officers and directors are known all over the country as among the leading influential business men and capitalists of this city. No better, safer, or stronger Insurance Company exists than the Continental. May it live and grow a thousand years—and continue to pay full dividends.—New York Independent.

To the Public.

"Now is the accepted time!"—to-morrow may be too late—days are dangerous.—Have you got a store of goods? Have you a dwelling house? Have you any insurable property? Go at once to Dimock's Agency and have it insured at once. Do not let the melancholy words "he had no insurance" prove applicable to your case in event of a sweeping fire.

Nothing like it to restore a doubtful credit. It is greatly to the credit of any owner or occupant of a building to have placed conspicuously over his door, any of the following leading companies' house plates. The Home of New York. The Phoenix of Hartford. The Continental of New York. The Security of New York. The Merchants of Hartford, or the Northern of London, England. Is your credit at the Banks getting below par; up with one of these plates and you are all right at the Rock County, the Central or at Hoyt's.—Every passerby will say "there is a sound business man." Tell your New York creditors that you insure your lake freights in the reliable Old Home, and your goods enter their arrival in any of these incomparable companies and your orders will at all times be filled, and at the lowest figures. A few more of these ornamental plates left at Dimock's Agency.

I desire to call the attention of the citizens of Janesville and Rock county, more in detail to these well known, reliable and prompt paying
